CANDIDATE: Nicu Alina Livia, Associate Professor;
University of Craiova, Faculty of Law

2017

The present work, elaborated in accordance with the legal exigencies concerning the habilitation theses contain references to the most important original results of my activity of scientific research, as well as references to my professional and academic achievements together with the directing lines of a career development project. This is not a monograph, but an accumulation.

I. Synthesis of my career

I.1 Scientific achievements. Contributions in modernizing the Administrative Law

a) The Doctoral Thesis – an initial point for the action of presenting my scientific achievements

My post-doctoral scientific research activity does also rely upon a few among the results obtained during the period of the doctoral studies. I have obtained the title of LLD (Doctor of LAW) in 2003, by sustaining the thesis: "The Public Institution in Administrative Law" under the scientific guidance of Professor Alexandru Negoitzã. In the conclusions of the thesis some original opinions have been expressed in what concerns: the definition of the concept of public institution in Administrative Law; the configuration issues of the Administrative Law; the relationship of biunivocal dependence between the public administration and the social purpose.

b) The main interest in the scientific research and original contributions

My main interest in the scientific research since obtaining the LLD title till the present day has been the one of studying the: „Elements of the administrative phenomenon in the Romanian and European space” with an emphasis upon the issues which concern the regulation upon the public administration and upon the determining items in defining the social purpose in the context of Romania's integration to the European Union, respectively upon the way through which the concept of European Administrative Law should be understood. Most of the tomes and papers I have written as well as most of the grants/projects I have implemented or to the implementing of which I have participated in the quality of an external expert had themes/specific activities related to the current administrative phenomenon within the Romanian and European spaces, to the determining items in defining the social purpose or to the juridical and administration's academic training. I have analyzed the consequences of the action exerted by the civil society's structuring forces upon the way through which the public administration is ruled, I have analyzed critically the regulations which concern the stability into the public office seen as a counterparty to the juridical institution of the public servants' mobility, the applying of the principle of equality in the Administrative Law and in the European Community's Law, the appointment and the personnel rights of the public servants respectively, some aspects related to the distinct steps from the administrative contentious procedure and to the owned right to an equitable lawsuit, I have analyzed some issues related to the liability of the public agents which do issue rules and to its consequences upon the citizens, respectively upon the quality of the public administration, upon the very rapid modification of the administrative norms and not only about these.

In the thesis I have organized the presentation of the results of my scientific research into three chapters. In Chapter I are presented the issues related to the idea that the public administration has the mission of being the guarantor of the respect vowed to the citizen's rights and liberties, thus contributing to the defining of the social purpose at a certain given moment. The conclusions are presented of the studies which concern the functions exerted by the public administration in the Romanian society, the conclusions concerning some principles which ought to rule over the public administration in the context of Romania's integration to the European Union and some aspects concerning the action exerted by the public administration in order to define and materialize the social purpose. All of these do have to take into consideration the particular features of the juridical relations which pertain to the Administrative Law. Chapter II is dedicated to the presentation of the conclusions which I have considered to be the most important and which I have drawn from the critical analysis of how some issues related to the public administration are ruled, such as: the regulations in the matter of the good administration conduct, the regulations in the matter of the public office, the regulations in the matter of the liability of the agents entitled to issue or adopt some normative acts, the regulations in the matter of the administrative contentious procedure understood as a protective mean for the citizen but as well as a lever to be made use of by the public administration's entities in order to adjust the occurring errors, the necessity of codifying in the matter of the Administrative Law. Chapter III is reserved to the contributions to the modernizing of the Administrative Law through other works and research activities: results issued from research projects, from participating in national and international conferences, from the quality of appointed reviewer that I own as a member of the boards of many specialized journals. In the same chapter I have presented an autoevaluation of my most significant scientific contributions.

In respect to the requirements of the MERYS' Order nr.4204/2013, I have published 13 specialized tomes as sole author, issued at the Didactică și Pedagogică, Sitech and Universitaria publishing houses. I also was a member of the authors' collective for 6 works of the highest importance in the landscape of the Romanian juridical literature, due to their scientific value, which has come to be proven by their public success and by the fact that, in what concerned the matter they had approached and the modality through which they had approached it, four among those six were the first ever editorial appearances within the specialized Romanian doctrine. As a result of my permanent preoccupation for elaborating some didactic material for the students' activities among my 13 books as an unique author are some methodology works. To the mentioned 19 tomes do come to join 5 books as a sole author and 2 books of which I am the co-author published at publishing houses and having a number of copies printed which isn't according with the MERYS' Order nr.4204/2013. Until now I have published 43 papers and studies in scientific journals that are indexed into international databases or enjoying an acknowledged prestige. I have published 36 communications in the proceedings of some scientific conferences.
